

ASSIGNMENT

- 1) The human faculties that direct us to God are the intellect and the will, because through these faculties we are able to contemplate the highest Truth which is God and to achieve the purpose why we were made: to know, to love and to serve God.
- 2) No, because all these mentioned dimensions and many more make up a true human person.
- 3) The human person has a vocation to live in communion because the human person is rational and social in nature and was created for a life of communion because man is created in the image and likeness of God ('Trinity' let us made man in OUR OWN image). She lived out her vocation to live in communion by entry a healthy relationship with other and by exercising faith and reason in her daily relationship with others.
- 4) Yes, it is possible because politics is about making agreements between people in order to live together and in communion. Religion is about working towards a goal of salvation for oneself and others by render due worship to God. Therefore, for a religious person to have good relationship with a community of people she has to ensure the well ordering and organization of the community.
- 5) The human person accomplished the vocation of knowing and loving God by constantly seeking to know God and his precepts, doing the will of God and practically showing her love for God in her relationship with other people.